Venerable Anthony of the Kiev Caves

COMMEMORATED THIS DAY

He received monastic tonsure on Mt. Athos. Returning to the land of Rus, Anthony began to make the rounds of the monasteries about Kiev, but nowhere did he find that strict life which had drawn him to Mt. Athos. At last he found a cave which had been dug out by the Priest Hilarion, who later became Metropolitan of Kiev. Since he liked the spot, Anthony prayed with tears, "Lord, let the blessing of Mt. Athos be upon this spot, and strengthen me to remain here." He began to struggle in prayer, fasting, vigil and physical labor. Every other day, or every third day, he would eat only dry bread and a little water. Sometimes he did not eat for a week. People began to come to the ascetic for his blessing and counsel, and some decided to remain with the saint. The virtuous life of St Anthony illumined the Russian land with the beauty of monasticism. For his holiness of life, God glorified St Anthony with the gift of clairvoyance and wonderworking. Through Divine Providence, the relics of St Anthony remain hidden.

45 Martyrs of Nicopolis

ALSO COMMEMORATED THIS DAY

The Forty-five Martyrs of this Armenian City suffered during the reign of the emperor Licinius (311-324), then a coregent with Constantine the Great. Licinius fiercely persecuted Christians and in his Eastern half of the Empire. He issued an edict to put to death anyone who would not consent to return to paganism. When the persecutions began at Nicopolis, more than forty of the persecuted of Christ decided to appear voluntarily before their persecutors, to confess openly their faith in the Son of God and accept martyrdom. The procurator gave orders to beat the confessors about the face with stones and then shackle and imprison them. An angel declared to the martyrs that their contest was near its end, and their names already were inscribed in Heaven. The governor decided to put the martyrs of Christ to death. After beastly tortures they burned them in a fire and threw their bones in a river. Pious people found the relics, gathered them up and saved them. Later on, when freedom had been bestowed to the Church of Christ, a church was built on this spot in the name of the Holy 45 Martyrs.
